Outbound Enrollment Follow-Up Script

A practical phone script for Facebook form leads across private schools, public schools, summer camps, day camps, and daycares. Use it to remind the prospect why they opted in, qualify enrollment needs, and book a short strategy call.

|                          |                                                                                        |
|--------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Primary objective | Book a qualified strategy call. Do not try to sell the full program on the first call. |
| Tone              | Calm, conversational, confident, and permission-based.                                 |
| Personalize       | Use [First Name], [Business Name], [Business Type], [Form Date], and [Days Ago].       |

Quick Call Flow

- Confirm the person: "Hey, is this [First Name]?"
- Reference the opt-in: "You filled out a Facebook form about increasing enrollment for [Business Name]."
- Let them respond: they remember, they do not remember, or they are busy.
- Qualify the need: timing, capacity, goals, current inquiry flow, and follow-up process.
- Close for the next step: offer two call times and book the strategy call.

BASE OPENER

"Hey, is this [First Name]?"

"Hey [First Name], this is [Rep Name] calling from EduCare Leads. You filled out a Facebook form [Days Ago] about getting more enrollments for [Business Name]. I know these things are easy to forget, but does that ring a bell?"

Pause and let them answer. The next line depends on whether they remember.

Scenario 1: They Remember The Form

IF THEY SAY YES

"Perfect. The reason I am calling is that you mentioned you were interested in increasing enrollment for your [Business Type]."

"We help schools, camps, and childcare centers generate qualified parent inquiries and turn those into booked tours, registrations, or enrollment calls."

"Just so I do not assume too much, are you currently looking to fill spots now, or are you more planning ahead for the next season?"

"Got it. Roughly how many additional enrollments would make this worthwhile for you over the next few months?"

"That sounds like something we may be able to help with. The best next step would be a short strategy call where we can look at your goals, your current enrollment process, and see if there is a fit. Are you available later today or tomorrow?"

Scenario 2: They Do Not Remember

IF THEY SAY NO

"No worries at all. That happens all the time."

"You had filled out a Facebook form on [Form Date] about getting more enrollments for [Business Name]."

"We are EduCare Leads. We help private schools, public schools, summer camps, day camps, and daycares increase enrollment using our lead generation and follow-up system."

"I do not want to catch you off guard, but is growing enrollment something you are currently focused on?"

If yes: "Okay, great. Are you looking to fill spots immediately, or more for an upcoming semester, season, or camp session?"

If no: "Totally fair. Should I close the loop on this for now, or would it make sense to reconnect closer to your next enrollment push?"

Scenario 3: They Are Busy

KEEP IT SHORT

"Totally understand. I will be brief."

"You filled out a form about increasing enrollment for [Business Name], and I was calling to see if that is still something you wanted help with."

"Would it be better if I called you later today, or should we put a quick 15-minute call on the calendar?"

Scenario 4: What Do You Do?

SIMPLE EXPLANATION

"We help education and childcare businesses get more qualified parent inquiries and turn those inquiries into actual enrollment opportunities."

"That usually includes ads, landing pages, follow-up automation, and appointment-setting support, depending on what you need."

"The main thing is that we are not just trying to get clicks or random leads. We are focused on helping you get families who are actually interested in enrolling."

Scenario 5: They Are Interested But Skeptical

ACKNOWLEDGE AND REFRAME

"Completely fair. A lot of people have tried ads before and either got low-quality leads or no clear return."

"That is why we focus on the full enrollment process: who sees the ad, what they respond to, how fast they are followed up with, and whether they book a tour or call."

"On the strategy call, we can look at where you are now and see if there is a clear path to making it profitable."

Scenario 6: They Already Have Marketing

DO NOT ARGUE WITH IT

"That is good. In that case, this may or may not be a fit."

"Are you happy with the number and quality of enrollment inquiries you are getting right now?"

If no: "Then it may be worth comparing what is working now versus where the gaps are."

If yes: "Great, then timing may not be right. Would it be okay if I checked back closer to your next enrollment season?"

Scenario 7: They Ask About Price Too Early

DEFER WITHOUT DODGING

"It depends on the type of program, the enrollment goals, and how much support you need. I would not want to throw out a random number without understanding your situation."

"If it looks like we can help, we will walk you through the options clearly on the strategy call. If it does not make sense, we will tell you that too."

Qualification Questions

Use only a few of these. The call should feel like a conversation, not an interrogation.

- What type of program are you trying to grow right now?
- Are you trying to fill spots immediately, or planning for an upcoming term, season, or camp session?
- How many open spots or additional enrollments would make this worthwhile?
- What are you doing right now to generate parent inquiries?
- When a parent inquires, how quickly does your team follow up?
- Are most inquiries turning into tours or calls, or are they going cold?
- What would make the next few months successful from an enrollment standpoint?

Booking Close

CONFIDENT NEXT STEP

"Based on what you shared, I think it is worth a quick strategy call."

"It is not a sales presentation. We will look at your enrollment goals, what you are currently doing, and whether we can realistically help."

"Would today at [Time Option 1] work, or is tomorrow at [Time Option 2] better?"

Voicemail

SHORT MESSAGE

"Hey [First Name], this is [Rep Name] from EduCare Leads."

"You filled out a Facebook form a few days ago about increasing enrollment for [Business Name], so I was just reaching out to see if that is still something you are interested in."

"You can call me back at [Phone Number], or I will send you a quick text as well."

Text Follow-Up

AFTER MISSED CALL

Hey [First Name], this is [Rep Name] from EduCare Leads. You filled out our Facebook form about increasing enrollment for [Business Name]. Just tried giving you a quick call. Is getting more enrollments still something you are looking into?

Rep Notes

- Avoid: "Would you be interested in booking a call of some sort?" It sounds uncertain.
- Use: "The best next step would be a quick strategy call. Are you available today or tomorrow?"
- Keep the first call focused on relevance, timing, and booking the next conversation.
- If they are not a fit, close gracefully and ask when to reconnect.

Use The Form Data

| Field           | How to use it on the call                                                                      |
|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Business type   | Name their category: daycare, private school, public school, summer camp, or day camp.         |
| Business name   | Say it early so the call feels specific, not like a generic cold call.                         |
| Revenue         | Use it only for qualification. Do not mention the number unless they bring up budget or scale. |
| Submission date | Use it when they do not remember: "You filled it out on [Form Date]."                          |

Disposition Guide

- Booked: send calendar invite immediately and confirm the best email and phone number.
- Interested, not booked: schedule a specific callback time and send a short text recap.
- Not now: ask when enrollment becomes a priority again and set the follow-up month.
- Not a fit: mark the reason clearly so the lead is not recycled without context.
- No answer: leave one voicemail max, send the text follow-up, and continue the cadence.

Mini Scorecard

- Strong fit: active enrollment need, open capacity, decision-maker engaged, clear next step.
- Medium fit: interested but timing is later, unclear budget, or needs internal buy-in.
- Weak fit: no growth goal, no open spots, poor contact info, or no willingness to discuss.
